

30 Things Not To Do In Ireland As a Tourist

Planning a trip to the magical land of Ireland? As a tourist, it's important to be aware of the cultural norms and avoid any unintentional missteps that might offend or inconvenience the locals. To ensure you have a smooth and enjoyable experience during your visit, here are 30 things you should avoid doing in Ireland:

1. Calling it "Southern Ireland"

Contrary to popular belief, Ireland is not divided by North and South. It consists of two separate countries: the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland. Be sure to refer to the Republic of Ireland as "Ireland" and not "Southern Ireland," as it can be considered disrespectful.

2. Neglecting to Try Traditional Irish Food

Ireland is known for its delicious cuisine, so make sure to indulge in traditional dishes such as Irish stew, soda bread, and boxty. Avoid sticking to familiar fast-food chains and explore the local flavors.

3. Underestimating the Weather

Ireland's weather can be unpredictable, so always carry an umbrella or a raincoat with you. Be prepared for sudden rain showers or a gust of wind, especially if you're visiting during the colder months.

4. Disrupting Pub Etiquette

Pubs are an essential part of Irish culture, but avoid getting too rowdy or causing disturbances. Respect the locals and their traditions by maintaining a friendly and relaxed atmosphere.

5. Invading Personal Space

Irish people value their personal space, so avoid standing too close or touching someone unless you have established a close relationship. Always be polite and maintain an appropriate distance when interacting with locals.

6. Neglecting to Visit Historical Sites

Ireland is rich in history, so take the time to explore the ancient castles, burial sites, and monuments. Don't miss out on the chance to immerse yourself in the fascinating stories of Ireland's past.

7. Overlooking Rural Areas

While Dublin is a popular tourist destination, don't limit your visit to the capital city. Explore the picturesque countryside, coastal villages, and hidden gems that Ireland's rural areas have to offer.

8. Assuming Everyone Is a Leprechaun Expert

Leprechauns and folklore are certainly a part of Irish culture, but not every Irish person is an expert on mythical creatures. Avoid assuming that every local knows about leprechauns or expecting them to share their supposed pots of gold!

9. Ignoring Irish Phrases

Learning a few simple Irish phrases such as "hello" (Dia dhuit) or "thank you" (go raibh maith agat) can go a long way in connecting with the locals and showing your appreciation for their culture.

10. Disregarding Traffic Rules

When crossing the street, always use designated crosswalks and follow the traffic signals. Ireland's traffic may be different from what you're used to, so stay safe and avoid any unnecessary risks.

11. Expecting Everything to Be Green

While Ireland is known as the Emerald Isle due to its lush green landscapes, don't expect everything to be green all year round. Seasons change, and it's possible to encounter brown or golden landscapes during certain times of the year.

12. Mispronouncing Place Names

Irish place names can be challenging to pronounce, but making an effort to say them correctly shows respect for the local culture. Practice a few basic pronunciations before your trip to avoid any embarrassment.

13. Tossing Litter

Ireland takes pride in its clean and beautiful environment. Respect the country's efforts in maintaining its natural beauty by properly disposing of your trash in designated bins.

14. Overbooking Accommodation

Ireland is a popular tourist destination, especially during peak seasons. Avoid the disappointment of overbooked accommodations by making your reservations well in advance.

15. Forgetting to Try Irish Whiskey

Ireland is famous for its whiskey, so indulge in a tasting session to experience the distinct flavors. Expand your horizons and try different types of whiskey during your visit.

16. Using Offensive Stereotypes

Avoid using offensive stereotypes when referring to the Irish people or their culture. Embrace diversity and treat everyone with kindness and respect.

17. Dismissing Local Traditions

Ireland has a deep-rooted traditional culture. Take part in local customs and celebrations, such as a traditional music session or attending a Gaelic football match, to gain a deeper understanding of Irish traditions.

18. Underdressing for the Weather

Even if the weather appears mild, always dress in layers to adapt to sudden changes in temperature. It's better to have extra clothing to keep warm rather than feeling uncomfortable during your visit.

19. Driving Without Familiarizing Yourself with the Rules

If you're planning to drive in Ireland, be sure to familiarize yourself with the local driving rules and road signs. Remember, they drive on the left side of the road!

20. Crossing Borders Without Proper Documentation

If you plan to visit Northern Ireland from the Republic, ensure you have the appropriate documentation and adhere to border control regulations. Don't forget your passport if you plan to explore both regions.

21. Ignoring the Local Music Scene

Ireland is famous for its vibrant music scene, so take the chance to listen to traditional Irish music in a local pub. Embrace the lively atmosphere and enjoy the talented musicians.

22. Complaining About the Price of Pints

Drinking in Ireland can be expensive, especially in tourist areas or cities. Instead of complaining about the price of pints, consider it a worthwhile investment in the local experience.

23. Assuming Everyone Is Irish

Ireland attracts people from various cultural backgrounds. Avoid assuming that everyone you meet is Irish, as the country is a melting pot of different ethnicities.

24. Omitting Sheep Sightings

Ireland's countryside is dotted with fluffy sheep, and seeing them is an iconic part of the landscape. Don't forget to appreciate their charm and capture some memorable photographs!

25. Leaving Out the Cliffs of Moher

The Cliffs of Moher are a breathtaking sight and a must-visit destination in Ireland. Witness the dramatic cliffs plunging into the Atlantic Ocean and take in the awe-inspiring natural beauty.

26. Failing to Embrace Traditional Irish Dancing

Irish dancing is not just for professionals or stage performances. Try joining a traditional Irish dancing session and enjoy the lively music and energetic footwork.

27. Overpacking for the Trip

Ireland's weather allows for layering, so don't overpack your suitcase. Pack versatile clothing items that you can mix and match according to the weather conditions.

28. Avoiding Friendly Conversations

Irish people are known for their friendliness and love of a good chat. Embrace the chance to engage in friendly conversations with locals and discover their unique perspectives.

29. Skipping the Wild Atlantic Way

The Wild Atlantic Way is a stunning coastal route that stretches along Ireland's west coast. Don't miss out on the opportunity to drive or explore parts of this remarkable maritime journey.

30. Leaving Without Soaking Up the Irish Charm

Lastly, don't leave Ireland without allowing yourself to soak up the country's charm. Embrace the hospitality, warmth, and unique experiences that Ireland has to offer, making lasting memories during your visit.

By following these suggestions, you'll ensure a more culturally sensitive and rewarding experience in Ireland. Enjoy your journey through the land of breathtaking landscapes, vibrant traditions, and friendly locals!

The Ultimate Guide To What NOT To Do In Ireland

There are hundreds, if not thousands, of guide books by experts telling you what to do and where to go when you visit Ireland. All these books cover basically the same areas and attractions but this book is very different.

In this book there are no recommendations and glowing reviews of things to do, see and stay while in Ireland. There are no star ratings, no fancy colour enhanced photos which turn out look quite different in reality. In this book there is common sense, practical advice on what not to do and say in Ireland in order for you to enjoy even more all the places the fancy guides and travel experts tell you about.

As a bartender and hotel worker I have personally experienced tourists not following each one of these 30 little pieces of advice and witnessed the embarrassing and stressful situations it can lead to.

Some of the pieces of advice include;

- How not to greet an Irish person.
- Talking about Irish Politics.
- How not to behave in a pub in Ireland.
- What not to drink.
- Where and how not to drive in Ireland.
- What not to wear.
- How not to speak.
- Areas not to stay too long in.
- And lots, lots more.

In the second part of this book I have included facts which will educate you a little, amuse you a little and give you an understanding of the Ireland and the Irish which will greatly help you in a conversation at 12.30am in front of a fire, in a small pub, in the west of Ireland with the locals. (And it's raining)

- How to pronounce the name of the town.
- How to pronounce the locals names.
- How did counties get their names.
- What world changing things did the Irish Invent.

- Dozens of weird & wonderful facts about Ireland.
- How many sheep are there in Ireland.
- What does 211 D mean on your rental car plate.
- Any many, many more handy facts and figures .

This will probably be the most consulted non guide book you will bring with you on your trip to The Emerald Isle.
