2. Baby Quilt

If you're new to quilting and want to try your hand at something slightly more challenging, a baby quilt is a great choice. June Mccrary Jacobs recommends starting with a simple design like a charm quilt or a four-patch quilt. Choose soft and colorful fabric that's gentle against a baby's delicate skin. The small size of a baby quilt makes it perfect for practicing your quilting skills and experimenting with different quilting patterns. Plus, these quilts make cherished keepsakes and thoughtful presents for new parents.

3. Table Runner

Add a touch of elegance to your dining table or console with a handmade table runner. Table runners not only protect your surfaces but also provide an opportunity to showcase your quilting talent. Choose fabric that complements your decor and experiment with intricate designs like log cabins or flying geese. Table runners are versatile projects that allow you to practice your quilting techniques on a larger scale. June Mccrary Jacobs suggests using contrasting colors to make your runner pop and leave a lasting impression.

4. Tote Bag

Take your quilting skills on the go by making a stylish and functional tote bag. A quilted tote bag is perfect for carrying your essentials while showing off your sewing prowess. June Mccrary Jacobs recommends selecting durable fabric for the exterior and a soft, complementary fabric for the lining. Add pockets, zippers, or other embellishments to personalize your bag. Tote bags provide a larger canvas to explore different quilting techniques, including appliqué or embroidery. Stand out from the crowd with a unique quilted tote bag.

5. Wall Hanging

Quilts aren't limited to functional items – they can also be pieces of art that adorn your walls. Create a stunning wall hanging that showcases your creativity and adds warmth to your living space.
