It is 1940 and when bombs begin to fall, the residents of Cedar Street take cover as best they can. Most of the children welcome the opportunities that the air raids offer and eagerly gather at a nearby bombsite to explore their new playground. However, when tragedy is narrowly averted, their hopes are dashed and plans turned upside down.

Their lives will never be the same again.

This is an emotional journey through the landscape of a Northern, war time childhood. Scarcities, bombing raids and evacuation are all set against the backdrop of growing up and the changing fabric of family life.
