What is Kumihimo?

Kumihimo is a Japanese braiding technique that dates back to the ancient samurai era. The word "Kumihimo" translates to "gathered threads" in Japanese, indicating the method of interlacing threads or cords to create braids.

Traditionally, Kumihimo was done by hand, using wooden stands or boards. However, with the advent of the Kumihimo disk, braiding has become more accessible and efficient.

Braiding With Beads

The Kumihimo disk makes it easy to incorporate beads into your braids. By placing beads on the threads before starting the braiding process, you can create stunning jewelry pieces with intricate bead patterns. The beads become an integral part of the braid, accentuating its design and adding an element of sophistication.

How to Braid with Beads on the Kumihimo Disk

To get started with braiding beads on the Kumihimo disk, follow these steps:

1. Gather your materials: Kumihimo disk, threads, beads, scissors, and a weight.

2. Prepare your threads: Cut the desired number of threads, ensuring they are all the same length. You can use different colors for a more vibrant design.
3. Thread the beads: String your beads onto each thread according to your desired pattern. Make sure to leave a small tail of thread before the first bead to secure it during braiding.
4. Set up the Kumihimo disk: Place the threads into the slots on the Kumihimo disk, evenly distributing them around the disk.
5. Braid the beads: Following the traditional Kumihimo braiding technique, interlace the threads by moving them in a specific order (clockwise or counterclockwise) over and under each other. The beads will naturally become part of the braid as you weave the threads.
6. Continue braiding: Repeat the braiding process until you reach your desired length.
7. Finish the braid: Once you're satisfied with the length, remove the braid from the Kumihimo disk and secure the ends with a knot or a jewelry finding.
