Whippets are quick-moving dogs who have excelled in agility, flyball, and racing competitions. They have the appearance and movement of miniature greyhounds and were bred as hunting dogs with the ability to outrun their prey. While you might expect this fast-moving dog to be high-energy and difficult to handle, they are actually relatively calm dogs. Their reserved, quiet personalities make them excellent pets. They are loyal and friendly with people and rarely bark. These dogs are prone to separation anxiety if left alone for extended periods of time, so they should be kept in a home where people are present for the majority of the day.
