Managing Resources with WASM

One of the key aspects of sport management is the effective utilization of resources. Whether it's financial resources, human capital, or technological infrastructure, managing resources efficiently can make a significant difference in the success of sports organizations.

WASM provides a wealth of resources and opportunities for its members to develop their skills in resource management. From workshops and webinars to conferences and research grants, WASM helps individuals and organizations strengthen their ability to make sound strategic decisions regarding resource allocation.

One example of WASM's resource management initiatives is the Sports Industry Career and Resource Fair (SICRF). This annual event brings together sport management professionals and industry leaders offering career opportunities and valuable resources for aspiring sport managers. Attending the fair not only provides access to job openings but also learning opportunities through seminars and networking with professionals.

Additionally, WASM offers a comprehensive online resource library, providing members with access to a vast collection of articles, research papers, and case studies on various aspects of sport management. This resource hub acts as a one-stop-shop for individuals seeking knowledge and guidance on resource management in the sports industry.

Seizing Opportunities with WASM

In addition to managing resources, identifying and seizing opportunities is crucial in the competitive world of sports. WASM recognizes the importance of staying ahead of trends and embracing emerging opportunities to drive growth and success.

Through its global network and collaborations with industry partners, WASM constantly keeps its members informed about the latest trends and opportunities in sport management. Members gain access to cutting-edge research, market insights, and industry reports, allowing them to make informed decisions and pursue new avenues to grow their careers or businesses.

WASM also organizes conferences, symposiums, and workshops focused on emerging trends in the sport industry. These events provide an interactive platform for sharing knowledge, discussing best practices, and brainstorming innovative solutions to challenges faced by sport managers worldwide.

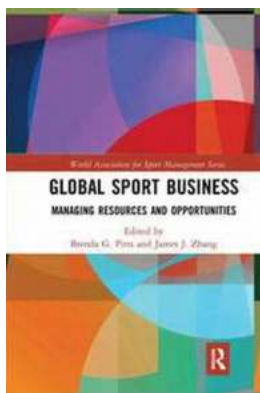

Furthermore, the World Association for Sport Management actively encourages members to engage in research and publish their work. By contributing to the body of knowledge in sport management, members not only enhance their own expertise but also contribute to the collective growth and development of the industry as a whole.

In the global sport business industry, growth, and development within and across various sport businesses are essential for competitive advantage. This fascinating collection of chapters examines how the development and management of resources and opportunities in sport business is vital to success.

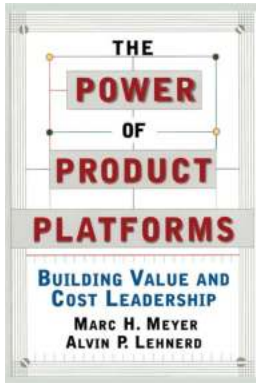

Commissioned by the World Association for Sport Management (WASM) and featuring global perspectives from leading international scholars and original research data drawn from both qualitative and quantitative inquiry, the book presents cases as diverse as customer demand in the NBA, sport and physical activity human resources in Spain and stakeholder relationships in Chinese football. Presented in three parts (global perspectives, managing resources, and managing opportunities), Global Sport Business examines key research and practical issues in sport business management and marketing studies in both global and local contexts.

This is an important read for professors, scholars, and students in sport business management, a useful resource for sport business management professionals and practitioners, and illuminating reading for anyone with an interest in sport management.
