WHO WE MUST BE!

You are a good you.
I must

BE ME

When I try to be you and you try to be me neither of us will be happy neither of us will be unique the world is full of me's who forgot to be.

So let's agree

You be you and I'll

don't give up

for all the trying times in your life don't ever give up don't ever lose that spark of hope even at times when you feel like giving up at times when the journey gets too difficult and plagued with too many uncertainties keep that faith alive and never ever get tired for someday soon the tides will turn and a new ray of sunshine is born

Dean the Bean gets a Screen is an entertaining, fun, and engaging story with a purpose, written in a memorable Seuss-like rhyme. Perfect for children ages 4-10, this book offers an easy way for parents to introduce their kids to the vital issue of "screen addiction" through a likeable character named Dean the Bean.

While written for kids, the book serves as a reminder to us all that we are human beings with lives worth living and opportunities to experience--not just "Do-Nothing Beans" addicted to our favorite virtual leash. The story: Dean is a cute, bored bean who wants excitement in his life. When he discovers the joys and encompassing fascination offered by various electronic platforms/screens (televisions, computers, cell phones, etc.), he forfeits his real life for life 'on the screen.' Dean soon gets addicted to his screens and his real life suffers. At last he realizes that his virtual-world has lost its color, but he finds his way back to the beauty of real-life when he steps away from his screens and their 'make-pretend existence.' Dean encourages us all to put our screens in 'time-out' from time-to-time so we can experience the joys that await us when we unplug from their influence. Screens are fun and useful, but they can take over our lives if we're not careful. Dean the Bean is like The Social Dilemma for kids—it sounds the warning in a hilarious format that children can understand.
