An extra-ordinary day in paradise. What else is new?

Honolulu is full of cemeteries, and the legendary ghost stories that go with them. Hearing about a few of the more famous ghosts on a visit to the famous tropical city, pregnant neurosurgeon June Kato plans on keeping a low profile to avoid contact. Until she discovers her bed and breakfast is haunted by a leper from Hawaii's past.

While attending a medical conference, she is convinced to assist a local surgeon in a long and difficult surgery. What she doesn't realize is that the tides of passion and politics run deep in Honolulu, and soon she is knee-deep in trouble--with a pistol pointed at her head. The real discovery comes when the person holding her hostage in an operating room has more to do with the ghosts haunting the neighborhood than what anyone could ever predict.

All June wants is a quiet weekend in an air-conditioned room and attend the conference. What she gets is a hot time in the old town that night!
