After training extensively, John eventually obtained his commercial pilot license. His exceptional flying skills quickly caught the attention of renowned airlines, and he soon found himself in the cockpit of some of the most advanced aircraft of his time.

The Rise of the Concorde

In the late 1960s, the world witnessed the birth of an aviation marvel: the Concorde supersonic jet. Designed to revolutionize air travel, this marvel of engineering promised to take passengers from London to New York in just a few hours.

John Hutchinson, already an accomplished pilot, seized the opportunity to become one of the first captains of this groundbreaking aircraft. His passion for speed and excellence made him the perfect choice for such a historic role.

The Thrills and Challenges of Flying the Concorde

Flying the Concorde was no ordinary job. As one of the fastest commercial aircraft ever built, it presented unique challenges and required exceptional skills. John Hutchinson, equipped with his extensive knowledge, fearlessly took on the responsibility.

From the exhilarating take-offs to the smooth landings, John's expertise ensured passengers had a comfortable and unforgettable experience. Whether cruising at Mach 2 or navigating through turbulent weather conditions, he remained calm and composed, providing absolute confidence to all on board.

Beyond the Concorde

While the Concorde's era sadly came to an end in 2003, John Hutchinson's brilliance as a pilot didn't stop there. With his remarkable career, he continued to inspire and educate future generations of aviators.

John became actively involved in training programs and shared his wealth of experience with aspiring pilots. His passion for aviation extended beyond the cockpit, leaving an impact that echoed within the aviation community.

A Legacy that Soars High

John Hutchinson's dedication and remarkable achievements have earned him a permanent place in aviation history. His contributions to the Concorde program, as well as his continued commitment to excellence, have left an enduring legacy that will inspire generations to come.

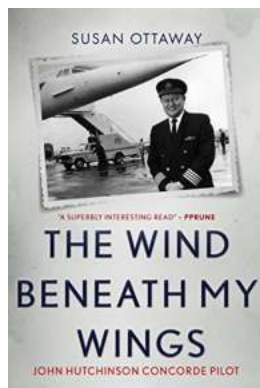

Even as time passes, the name of John Hutchinson will always be associated with the excitement, innovation, and elegance of the Concorde.

Inspiring a Sense of Wonder

John Hutchinson's tale serves as a reminder that dreams, no matter how audacious they may seem, have the power to become a reality with determination and unwavering passion. His story inspires us to reach for the skies, push our boundaries, and make history in our own unique way.

So let John Hutchinson's remarkable journey ignite a sense of wonder within you. Allow his legacy to serve as a constant reminder that the sky is not the limit – it is only the beginning of limitless possibilities.

The real story of one of the rare men to pilot Concorde...

From the first time Concorde took to the skies on 2 March 1969 until its final flight on 26 November 2003, the supersonic jet captured the imagination of the public. When Air France and British Airways announced their decision to stop flying Concorde there was a feeling of sadness and disbelief amongst the fans of this beautiful aeroplane around the world.

But what of the men who flew her? There were fewer Concorde pilots than US astronauts, but only a handful of them ever had public prominence. This is the story of one of those better known pilots, John Hutchinson.

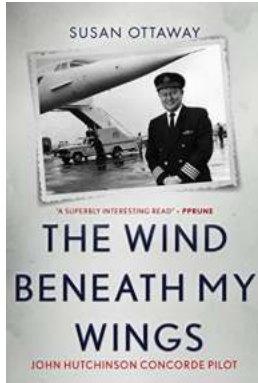

From his birth in India in the final decade of British rule and his escape to England following the bloody battles that accompanied Partition, to the present day, this is the tale of John Hutchinson's exciting and sometimes precarious life, featuring near-death experiences and a life-changing personal tragedy.

Praise for Susan Ottaway:

'A superbly interesting read, written about arguably the most eloquent of all Concorde pilot speakers. One of life's true gentleman and a superb pilot, it is a long overdue biography' - PPRuNe

Susan Ottaway has had a lifelong enthusiasm for aeroplanes, books and twentieth century history. She worked for four different airlines over a period of 20 years, mainly in the UK but also in Germany and Australia, and wrote her first book, a biography of Wing Commander Guy Gibson VC, before leaving the world of aviation. She has since written seven more books. She lives in Hampshire with Nick and their dog and three cats.
