2019 was a pretty bad year for me as an expat Englishman living in Cyprus. I lost one of my beloved dogs, Harvey, to cancer and toward the end of the year I broke seven ribs in a bad fall. I was told I was lucky to be alive. I'm thankful it wasn't worse. Then in the new year I contracted Swine Flu and almost immediately after that the Covid-19 virus swept the world. Cyprus was still a beautiful island to live on, but with a pandemic and multiple lockdowns, life in Cyprus was never going to be the same.
