"The Scottish Bus Group decided to bring all of its express coaches, London services and coach tours under the umbrella of Scottish Citylink Coaches. This was to raise standards and use a fleet of luxury coaches to work a unified network. This would raise awareness and unleash a fleet of coaches all in the same livery, echoing what National Express had already created in England.

Packed with a wealth of previously unpublished photographs from popular Scottish bus author David Devoy, this book tells a fascinating story that shows just how far the Scottish bus industry has come."
