Choices have consequences.

Sixteen-year-old TJ Shaw had to grow up fast as he is juggling the responsibilities of fatherhood, school, and being the top athlete while trying to maintain an active social life. Even though the relationship with his son's mother is on shaky ground, other factors in his life are triggering him to make poor decisions. As TJ's friendship with Seven Richardson blossoms, it has the potential to disrupt TJ's world as he knows it. While TJ is dealing with his own horrible circumstances, his best friend, Elijah, is on the brink of disaster.

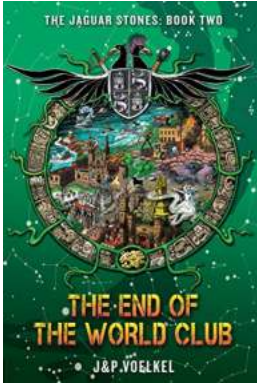

Elijah McDaniel is going through a lot emotionally. Although his sexuality is no secret to those closest to him, it is his secret life that could potentially cause him great harm – mentally, physically, and socially. While he's alienating the people who care for him, it is possible that a chance encounter could thrust Elijah into unfamiliar and very dangerous territory. What will cause TJ and Elijah's relationship to be pushed to the point of no return? Will their friendship still stand once the dust settles?

Join our friends in the first book of this spinoff series from Jaxon Grant's Life of a College Bandsman, as our favorite sons, TJ and Elijah, come together to reveal their truths. And one thing to be true in this story – the truth will not be pretty.
