Something has to be done about Ralph Henry Dalton! The Biggest Bragger in the Universe thinks he's the BEST at EVERYTHING, and he doesn't mind shouting it out every second he can! The kids in Miss Kassell's fifth grade class have had enough of his arrogant boasts. But, how to stop him?

Jerrianna Kingsley is certain she knows how. Her twin, Jeffrey, is very sure she does not! This idea of an air hockey tournament with Malley, their uniquely talented cat, as the Mystery Guest Player, is doomed to failure Big Time! Malley is good at the game, but she plays only when and if she feels like it.

Should Ralph Henry defeat all, including Malley, his triumphant boasts won't never cease even after graduation—of college! Moreover, once their classmates discover the identity of their MGP, every friend they have right now would immediately desert them!

To Jeffrey, the day is lost before it even begins. It's not worth risking sanity and friendships for. To Jerrianna, the day is bound to be won—who can hold his head up after being beaten by a cat? To Ralph Henry, the win already belongs to him. He'll defeat everyone and the Mystery Guest Player, and he'll do it blindfolded with hands behind his back! Bragging rights forever!

The events of Tournament Day, though, play out in a way no one expects . .
