Two murders, hundreds of miles apart with identical MOs: a foul-smelling vagrant slits the throat of an innocent bystander and then puts the knife to their own flesh.

Normally, the FBI wouldn't be called in for such cases, given that they're already technically 'solved'. But as a favor, Special Agents Floyd Montgomery and Tate Abernathy head to Columbus to investigate the first of two murder-suicides. What they find is disturbing, beyond the details of the individual crimes. The murders have more in common than just their MO. And when Agent Chase Adams arrives on the scene, things go from bizarre to downright disturbing. That's before she becomes the target of a killer who just may, or may not, be already dead.
