This is a sweet tender love story found in the same old places that it has always been found... in the heart of a man and a woman. For when a man loves a woman, he treats her in a most favorable way. This historical fiction novel portrays the manners and social conditions of the era presented in the story. How could I know who you are ... if I know nothing of anything or anyone you ever loved? Very few men on the face of this earth have lived without love. This epistolary novel, consist of love letters written by two lovers to each other. The letters take us into their thoughts at every pivotal point in their relationship. Just as 'The Elephant Speaks' with the tapping of a foot understood and heard miles away... The humans rumblings are heard with the lifting of a pen distances in time away ... One hundred & fifty years later. Through extensive research, I as the author have been able to explore one of the most potentially sensationalistic subjects a writer could address. Unspoken of and hidden love stories from the Victorian era the - 1800's. An obliging press and retinues of discreet enablers did a rather good job of keeping the lives private of public officials and the wealthy. I love facts, especially those that surprise or even shock us out of our own close-minded assumptions.
