The Woburn Years: A Journey Through Time

From 1978 to 2004, Showbus found its home at Woburn Abbey, nestled in the scenic surroundings of Bedfordshire, England. The picturesque location provided the perfect backdrop for this iconic event, adding an air of elegance and sophistication.

Visitors to the Woburn years experienced the magic of Showbus against the historic backdrop of the Abbey, strolling amidst a stunning collection of vintage buses and coaches. The event became renowned for its unique atmosphere, where old met new, and classic vehicles stood side by side with modern advancements.

One of the most cherished aspects of the Woburn years was the incredible number of preserved buses and coaches that graced the event. Enthusiasts from all over the world would bring their gleaming machines, lovingly restored to their former glory, generating a sense of awe and admiration in everyone who encountered them.

The Duxford Years: The Sky's the Limit

In 2005, Showbus made an exhilarating move to Imperial War Museum Duxford, propelling the event to new heights. Duxford, a historic airfield turned museum, added a touch of excitement and adventure to the Showbus experience.

Transporting visitors to this iconic venue, known for its collection of aircraft, offered a unique blend of history and technology. The juxtaposition of vintage vehicles and wartime aircraft created an intriguing spectacle that captivated audiences.

The Duxford years witnessed a surge in the popularity of Showbus as it expanded its reach and attracted a larger community of transport enthusiasts. The event became a hub for showcasing the latest advancements in public transportation, with major manufacturers and suppliers vying for attention amidst a sea of awe-inspiring buses and coaches.

The Legacy of Showbus

Throughout its years at Woburn and Duxford, Showbus has left an indelible mark on the transport industry and the hearts of enthusiasts worldwide. It has evolved from a simple gathering of like-minded individuals to an internationally recognized event that celebrates the rich heritage and evolution of buses and coaches.

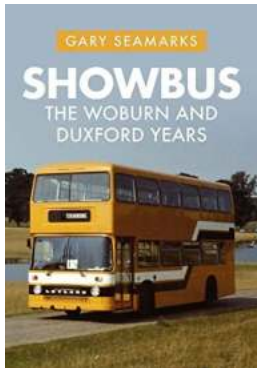

The legacy of Showbus continues to inspire the next generation of transport enthusiasts, instilling a love and appreciation for the vehicles that have connected communities for centuries. It serves as a reminder of the importance of preserving the past while embracing the advancements that shape our future.

"Between 1982 and 2015, Showbus, Britain's largest bus rally, was, with the exception of 2013, held at two sites. The first was the stately home of Woburn Abbey in Bedfordshire, but in 1993 the rally moved to IWM Duxford near Cambridge. Modern and preserved buses and many others appeared over the years, with some of those new in 1982 being in the ranks of the preserved movement by 2015. Many one-offs appeared, with operators showcasing their latest vehicles.

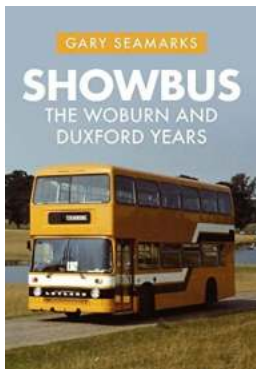

Back in 1982 the scene was very different with most service buses in public ownership and Leyland the major bus builder; by 2015 most were in private hands and the Leyland name is now history.

All images are in colour and offer a wonderfully nostalgic look at one of the highlights of the UK's transport calendar."
