Michael's journey began with extensive research into the lives of the Hollywood greats. He delved deep into their biographies, autobiographies, and countless interviews, determined to capture the essence of each character he would embody on stage. This intense and personal research allowed him to breathe life into the stories and delve into the complex emotions that lurked behind the legendary personas.

Act Two: The Unforgettable Performance

The result of Michaels' dedication is a two-act masterpiece that showcases his extraordinary talent for transformation. Over the course of the performance, he seamlessly transitions between characters like Marilyn Monroe, Humphrey Bogart, Audrey Hepburn, Marlon Brando, and many more, creating an immersive experience that transports the audience to different eras of Hollywood's golden age.

Each act presents a collection of monologues and dialogues that highlight key moments in the lives of these Hollywood icons. From the height of success to the depths of despair, the audience is captivated by the whirlwind of emotions as these legends share their triumphs and tribulations, their loves and losses, and their enduring legacy in the world of entertainment.

A Riveting Experience: Behind the Scenes

Bringing the captivating world of "The Hollywood Legends 64" to life requires immense creativity, technical precision, and an expertly designed stage production. The lighting design plays a crucial role in creating the right atmosphere for each character's story. Carefully crafted costumes and makeup distinguish one legend from another, enhancing the illusion that multiple actors are gracing the stage.

The intimate and immersive nature of this one-person play offers an extraordinary connection between the performer and the audience. Through subtle nonverbal cues, Michaels draws the audience into the inner world of each character, allowing them to share the raw emotions and vulnerabilities that these Hollywood legends once guarded so closely.

The Legacy: An Ode to Hollywood's Finest

"The Hollywood Legends 64" not only entertains but also serves as a poignant reminder of the immense impact these iconic figures have had on popular culture. As the performance unfolds, the audience gains a deeper appreciation for the struggles and triumphs that shaped these legends, and in turn, the influence they continue to wield in today's entertainment industry.

As the curtain falls on "The Hollywood Legends 64," the audience is left with a profound sense of gratitude and admiration for the performers who continue to embody the spirit of these Hollywood giants. John Michaels' outstanding talent and dedication bring new life to these legends, ensuring that their legacy remains etched in our hearts, minds, and on the silver screen forever.

“I think all actors are shy children” – Gig Young.

To the public, Gig Young was suave, handsome and charming.

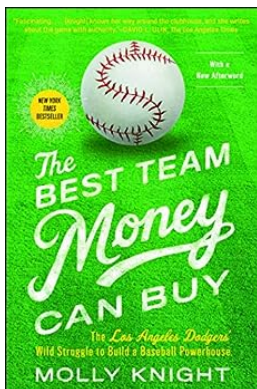

Privately, he dealt with tremendous insecurities that he attempted to mask with a dependence on alcohol.

On film, he was almost always “the other man”. He lost Doris Day to Clark Gable, Frank Sinatra, and Cary Grant, and, of course, Katharine Hepburn to Spencer Tracy.

He did, however, win an Academy Award for his performance in THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY? (1969).

Married five times, Young killed both his wife and then himself in 1978. His motive remains a mystery.

GIG YOUNG, Michael B. Druxman’s one-person stage play, joins the actor shortly before the tragic event, as he ponders the unfortunate choices he has made in his life.
