As he hit the water, lights flashed in his eyes and for a moment everything seemed to be moving in slow-motion...Even with his head still reeling, Max knew that something was wrong. Something was different!

Max Robinson would happily admit that he was a pretty average teenager: embarrassing parents, even more embarrassing friends and school mates, who really weren't any kind of friends at all! But even average people are capable of adventures which are anything but ordinary.

When Max inadvertently opens a door to a world not seen for nearly 2000 years, he is forced to face unimaginable dangers of Roman Britain. Just surviving amongst the lavish villas, dangerous backstreets and deadly amphitheatre of his new home would be impossible if it weren't for Senius, a slave boy intent on saving Max from his ruthless master.

With Senius' help, Max begins to realise that there may be a way of returning home and that his knowledge of the future may make him the only person that can solve the problems of the past. Dark secrets, hidden treasures and deadly enemies, turn Max's mission to return home into a deadly race against time. A race only he can run and which may just change history.
