Together, they established Macy's department store, which would become one of the most iconic retail establishments in the world. Ida was not just a silent partner; she actively contributed to the success of the business and was involved in various philanthropic endeavors.

Ida was known for her elegance, grace, and kindness. She was highly respected among her peers and often noted for her determination and compassion.

Isidor Straus: A Visionary and Philanthropist

Isidor Straus, born in 1845, was a prominent businessman and philanthropist. He was known for his foresight and innovation, playing a key role in the development of Macy's department store.

Isidor was not driven solely by wealth and success; he had a strong sense of social responsibility. He actively contributed to community organizations and championed causes that aimed to improve the lives of others.

Isidor and Ida Straus were not just partners in business; their love extended beyond the boardroom, and they shared an unbreakable bond.

Love Blooms Aboard the Titanic

In April 1912, the Strauses embarked on a journey that would forever seal their fate. They boarded the Titanic, planning to return to their loved ones waiting for them in New York.

Little did they know that the ship's maiden voyage would be its last. On the fateful night of April 15, 1912, tragedy struck when the Titanic struck an iceberg, causing it to sink into the icy depths of the North Atlantic Ocean.

Amidst the chaotic scene, Ida and Isidor Straus chose to face their fate together. When offered a place on a lifeboat, Ida refused to leave Isidor's side. Her unwavering devotion to her beloved husband touched the hearts of many who witnessed the event.

A Heartbreaking Farewell

As the lifeboats were being filled, Ida and Isidor Straus were given multiple opportunities to save themselves. However, they remained steadfast in their decision to remain together until the very end.

In their final moments, Ida and Isidor embraced each other, knowing that their love would endure beyond mortal limitations. Witnesses recall the scene, describing the couple's calmness and acceptance of their fate as they joined hands and met their tragic demise together.

A Legacy of Love and Devotion

The love story of Ida and Isidor Straus is one that has endured the test of time. Their sacrifice and unwavering devotion to each other serve as a reminder that true love knows no boundaries.

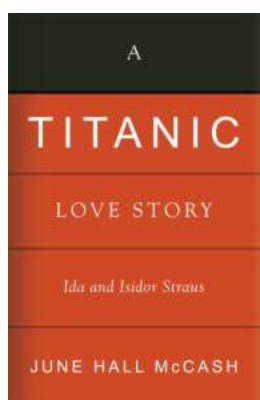

Today, their memory lives on, and their story continues to inspire generations. They are a symbol of the power of love, even in the face of unimaginable tragedy.

It is essential that we remember the human stories behind historical events like the sinking of the Titanic. As we honor the memory of the Strauses, let us also reflect on the lessons their love story has taught us.

This book traces the life of Isidor and Ida Straus, both German Jewish immigrants who arrived as children in America in the early 1850s. Isidor's father, Lazarus, was an itinerate peddler in Georgia, but within one generation the family became the wealthy owners of Macy's Department Store in New York. A Titanic Love Story follows the Strauses' life from Talbotton, Georgia, where an anti-Semitic incident caused them to move to nearby Columbus. The devastation of Columbus at the end of the Civil War brought the family to New York, where Isidor met and eventually married the young Ida Blun.

Ida and Isidor balanced the demands of business, family, and service to others and carved out their individual roles in those domains. A Titanic Love Story emphasizes their work together as a couple, focusing not only on Isidor's important roles as businessman, member of congress, and philanthropist, but also on Ida's contributions as an intelligent partner, the soul of the household, and matriarch of the family, as well as a stalwart supporter of her husband and one who engaged in philanthropic and creative activities of her own.

The Strauses were wealthy Jews within their New York community, and as people committed to the welfare of their family, their city, their country, and those less fortunate than themselves, they dealt with their own grief, illness, and occasional brushes with anti-Semitism. Ironically, their final happy days in the south of France lead to their unexpected sailing on the Titanic.

Both died as they had lived, with dignity, honor, loyalty to one another, and compassion for others. The public outpouring of grief at their deaths, even by today's standards of over-the-top journalism, was remarkable.
