

The Very Special Dutch East India Academy: A Glimpse into a Forgotten Empire

A long time ago, in a land far away, a powerful empire rose to dominance and revolutionized the world of trade and exploration. The Dutch East India Company, established in the 17th century, left an indelible mark on history, shaping the course of international commerce and changing how the world engaged with distant lands. Today, we delve into the fascinating story of this empire through an exploration of The Very Special Dutch East India Academy.

The Birth of a Trading Giant

Before we embark on our journey into the academy, let's take a step back and shed light on the origins of the Dutch East India Company. In the early 1600s, trade routes between Europe and the Far East were fraught with perils and controlled by powerful entities like the Portuguese and the Spanish. Seeking their share of the lucrative spice trade, the Dutch embarked on establishing a company that would challenge the existing order.

The Dutch East India Company, also known as the Vereenigde Oostindische Compagnie (VOC), was granted a government charter in 1602, granting it a monopoly on trade in the East Indies. This marked the birth of a trading giant that would shape the fortunes of a nation and lay the foundation for Dutch colonial rule in the region. The company's success was not solely reliant on its economic prowess; it also placed significant emphasis on knowledge and intellectual enrichment.

The Rise of The Very Special Dutch East India Academy

Amidst its quest for economic dominance, the Dutch East India Company understood the value of education and information. In 1623, it established The Very Special Dutch East India Academy, a center of learning and innovation that aimed to equip young minds with the skills necessary to navigate the world of trade, exploration, and diplomacy.

The Very Special Dutch East India Academy was not your ordinary educational institution. Nestled in a grand campus in Amsterdam, it boasted state-of-the-art facilities, including a library of rare and precious texts from around the world, botanical gardens showcasing exotic flora collected from the East Indies, and a comprehensive curriculum that combined theory and practical experience.

The academy attracted some of the brightest minds of its time, from aspiring traders and explorers to budding scholars and scientists. These students, hailing from all corners of the Dutch Empire, were carefully selected based on their passion, intellect, and drive. The academy fostered an environment of intellectual curiosity and encouraged its students to question established norms and beliefs.

Exploring the Academy's Unique Curriculum

The curriculum at The Very Special Dutch East India Academy was designed to produce well-rounded individuals capable of excelling in the complex world of international trade. Students underwent comprehensive training in subjects like mathematics, cartography, astronomy, languages, and economics, providing them with the necessary tools to navigate uncharted territories.

But it wasn't just academic pursuits that shaped the academy's curriculum. The Dutch East India Company believed in the power of practical experience, recognizing that firsthand knowledge was crucial for success. As a result, students were sent on expeditions to the far reaches of the empire, allowing them to interact with indigenous populations, study local customs, and gain a deeper understanding of the lands they aimed to trade with.

The Legacy of The Very Special Dutch East India Academy

The influence of The Very Special Dutch East India Academy extended far beyond its walls. The knowledge and expertise imparted within its classrooms fueled the expansion of the Dutch Empire, as well as the scientific and technological advancements of the time. Graduates of the academy went on to become influential figures, contributing to fields such as navigation, botany, linguistics, and anthropology.

Moreover, the academy's emphasis on intellectual curiosity and critical thinking left a lasting impact on Dutch society. It nurtured a culture of exploration and innovation, which propelled the nation to the forefront of global trade and diplomacy. The VOC's economic success, driven in part by the academy's graduates, laid the groundwork for the Dutch Golden Age.

Rediscovering the Academy's Heritage

Many centuries have passed since The Very Special Dutch East India Academy last welcomed students within its halls. The once-thriving institution is now largely forgotten, overshadowed by the empire it helped shape. However, there is a renewed interest in this remarkable institution, with efforts underway to revive and preserve its legacy.

The Very Special Dutch East India Academy represents not just a relic of the past, but a testament to the power of education and intellectual curiosity. It serves as a reminder that knowledge and learning can have far-reaching implications and shape the course of history.

In an era when global trade and international engagement continue to shape our world, it is essential to remember the vision and legacy of The Very Special Dutch East India Academy. For within its past lies inspiration for the present and potential insights for the future.

A modern classic children’s book

“Hemeltje! Tjeempie! Waw!”

A strange, old-fashioned Dutch gentleman calling himself “Mr. Representative”, dressed in white from top to toe, and four children, Helen, Alexander, Stella and Antony, fly in an Old Banger back in time to the very special Dutch East India Company’s Academy for gifted children, in old Batavia of 1900. But, on their very first night there, Jim Dream the Terrible and his gang burn the Academy building, steal the priceless share certificates of the Academy, threaten to kill the four newcomers and - later - capture Mr. Representative, too!

On a daring quest to save Mr. Representative, the Eternal Forest and the Academy’s share certificates, the four children live through exciting and dangerous adventures in the humid jungles of Java and over the Indian Ocean, in the tropical jungles of India.

Will the children survive and meet all the challenges in the scary Valley of Silence? What secrets will be revealed? Will they eventually dare to confront the gang? And, what exactly is the role of ... Mr. Jingles, the 100-year old myna bird?

G.S. Karagouni describes The Very Special Dutch East India Academy as a time and space travel fantasy adventure with a whiff of nostalgia for J. Verne’s Voyages Extraordinaires but brought right up to date for all those brilliant young boys and girls who love this kind of literature.
