

The Woods, Lakeboat, Edmond: Three Unforgettable Plays Worth Exploring

When it comes to theatre, some plays are obscured by time, while others stand the test and remain relevant throughout the ages. In the case of "The Woods," "Lakeboat," and "Edmond," we are fortunate to have three extraordinary works that have captivated audiences and solidified their place in the theatrical canon.

Play 1: The Woods

Written by the renowned playwright David Mamet, "The Woods" takes us on a journey into the depths of our fears and desires. The play revolves around a group of teenagers attending a summer camp situated deep within the woods. As the days pass, secrets unravel, relationships fray, and moral boundaries are tested.

With Mamet's trademark sharp dialogue and intense character dynamics, "The Woods" is a thought-provoking exploration of the human psyche and the hidden complexities that lie within us all. From its haunting setting to its brilliantly crafted narrative, this play leaves a lasting impact on its audience.

Play 2: Lakeboat

Set aboard a lake freighter, "Lakeboat" provides a unique glimpse into the lives of the ship's crew. Written by the master of dialogue, David Mamet, this play delves into the relationships and struggles that arise from living and working in close quarters.

As the characters interact, their stories intertwine, revealing their dreams, frustrations, and the harsh realities of their everyday lives. Mamet's skillful portrayal of human nature and the complexities of personal connections elevates "Lakeboat" to a level of storytelling that is simultaneously humorous and poignant.

Play 3: Edmond

David Mamet's "Edmond" explores the dark underbelly of society with unapologetic intensity. This gripping play follows the titular character, Edmond, as he embarks on a nightmarish journey through the seedy urban streets, seeking meaning and connection.

As Edmond encounters a variety of individuals, the play tackles themes of racism, power dynamics, and the human quest for self-discovery. Mamet skillfully exposes the raw emotions and harsh realities of life, forcing the audience to question their own understanding of the world and its inherent flaws.

In

The Woods, Lakeboat, and Edmond are three remarkable plays that immerse audiences in different worlds. From the intrigues of the summer camp in "The Woods" to the camaraderie and conflicts aboard the lake freighter in "Lakeboat," and finally, the unsettling journey of self-discovery in the merciless streets of "Edmond," these plays are a testament to the power of theatre to engage, provoke, and inspire.

Whether you're a theatre enthusiast or simply someone looking for thought-provoking entertainment, these three plays showcase the brilliance of David Mamet's writing and the enduring impact his works have on the world of theatre.

Three plays from the Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award–winning author of Glengarry Glen Ross and American Buffalo.

The Woods is a modern dramatic parable about, as Mamet put it, “why men and women have a hard time trying to get along with each other.” The story features a young man and woman spending a night in his family’s cabin where they experience passion, then disillusionment, but are in the end reconciled by mutual need.

In Lakeboat, an Ivy League college student takes a summer job as a cook aboard a Great Lakes cargo ship where the crewmembers—men of all ages—share their wild fantasies about sex, gambling, and violence. Mamet also wrote the screenplay to the 2000 film starring Peter Falk and Denis Leary.

In Edmond, a white-collar New York City man is set morally adrift after a visit to a fortune-teller. He soon leaves an unfulfilling marriage to find sex, adventure, companionship, and, ultimately, the meaning of his existence. Mamet also wrote the screenplay for the 2005 film starring William H. Macy.

“[A] beautifully conceived love story.” —Chicago Daily News on The Woods

“[Mamet’s] language has never been so precise, pure, and affecting.” —Richard Eder of The New York Times on The Woods

“Richly overheard talk and loopy, funny construction.” —Michael Feingold in The Village Voice on Lakeboat

“A riveting theatrical experience that illuminates the heart of darkness.” —Jack Kroll of Newsweek on Edmond
